NOTICE TO INVENTORS

It should be clearly understood that a Disclosure Document is not patent application, nor will its receipt date in any way become the effective filing date of the later filed patent application. A Disclosure Document may be relied upon only as evidence of conception of an invention and a patent application should be diligently filed if patent protection is desired.

Your Disclosure Document will be retained for two years after the date it was received by the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) and will be destroyed thereafter unless it is referred to in a related patent application filed within the two-year period. The Disclosure Documents may be referred to by way of a letter of transmittal in a new patent application or by a separate letter filed in a pending application. Unless it is desired to have the PTO retain the Disclosure Document beyond the two-year period, it is not required that it be referred to in the patent applications.

The two-year retention period should not be considered to be a "grace period" during which the inventor can wait to file his/her patent application without possible of benefits. It must be recognized that in establishing priority of invention an affidavit or testimony referring to a Disclosure Document must usually also establish diligence in completing the invention or in filing the patent application since the filing of the disclosure document.

If you are not familiar with what is considered to be "diligence in completing the Invention" or "reduction to practice" under the patent law or if you have other questions about patent matters, you are advised to consult with an attorney or agent registered to practice before the PTO. The publication, Attorneys and Agents Registered to Practice Before the United States Patent and Trademark Office, is available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, DC 20402. Patent attorneys and agents are also listed in the telephone directory of most major cities. Also, many large cities have associations of patent attorneys, which may be consulted.

You are also reminded that any public use or sale in the United States or publications of your invention anywhere in the world more than one year prior to the filing of
